DECLARATION OF INTEREST

Definition:

A conflict of interest arises when speakers/authors have interests that are not fully apparent and that may influence their judgement in such a way that an independent observer might reasonably question whether the statements made are influenced by their own interests, and or that which, when revealed later, would make a reasonable reader/member of the audience feel misled or deceived. They may be personal, commercial, political, academic or financial. Financial interests may include employment, research funding, and stock or share ownership, payment for lectures or travel, consultancies and company support of staff.

Policy of the AACB on Conflict of Interest:

All speakers/authors must disclose, on the disclosure of interest form, all relationships that could be viewed as presenting a potential conflict of interest including any affiliation with or financial involvement in, or payments or other assistance in kind from, any organisation with direct interest in the subject matter. The reason for requesting disclosure of possible conflict of interest is not to exclude speakers/authors, but to inform the audience/reader so they may decide for themselves whether or not a presentation/article may be biased.
